WAIVER AND CONSTRUCTIVE CREDIT FOR INTELLIGENCE ORIENTATION COURSE

25X1A Reference: [REDACTED]

1. All professional personnel in the Agency are expected to have a useful familiarization with and understanding of the mission, organization and functions of the intelligence community and the roles of the various Agency components, and a basic perception of International Communism and the USSR. Usually this is attained through the Intelligence Orientation Course which is conducted by the Office of Training for that specific purpose. Some individuals have acquired much of this knowledge incidental to their particular assignments with the Agency and would not benefit significantly by attending the entire Intelligence Orientation Course. In such cases it may be desirable to exempt the individual from attending the IOC as is generally required by Regulation [REDACTED] and to grant the individual constructive credit for the entire Course or one phase of it, i.e., Introduction to Intelligence or Introduction to Communism.

2. Policy

Heads of the various DD/S Career Services and Career Service Panels may grant constructive credit for the Intelligence Orientation Course to personnel under the cognizance of their respective Career Services who, in the IOC Waiver Test administered by the Office of Training, achieve scores not less than the following:

36	Introduction to Intelligence
28	Introduction to Communism

3. Procedure

Training Officers will (a) schedule individuals to take the IOC Waiver Test administered by the Office of Training, (b) advise appropriate officials of the test results, and (c) notify the individual and the Registrar, OER of the decision made in each case.
